1. Policy Statement

- Activate Learning recognises its duties and responsibilities to enable and support widening participation in higher education under the Equality Act 2010. As such, a student does not necessarily have to be disabled (as defined by the Equality Act 2010) to be entitled to reasonable adjustment(s).
- The Reasonable Adjustments Policy details Activate Learning’s commitment to support the effective implementation of reasonable adjustments, as part of our accessibility and anticipatory duties and our Equality and Diversity Policy.
- Accordingly, Activate Learning is committed to the following aims:
 - Encouraging people with a disability, additional learning needs or a health condition to declare their circumstances to us so that we can assist them appropriately
 - Eliminating any discriminatory practices as far as possible
 - Enabling individuals to demonstrate their knowledge, skills and understanding by removing unnecessary barriers

- Working with students on an individual basis to understand the barriers they face as a result of their disability, special educational needs or health condition and to consider reasonable adjustments to enable them to participate fully in the college life.
- Ensuring the quality, validity, integrity, comparability and reliability of assessments is not compromised.

2. Purpose

1.1. The purpose of this Policy is to set out our commitment and approach to making reasonable adjustments to ensure that we do not discriminate either directly or indirectly against learners with a disability.

- Activate Learning's Reasonable Adjustment Policy and associated procedures set out how we fulfil our anticipatory duty by making reasonable adjustments that effectively support students to succeed. Reasonable Adjustments are made so that no applicant or student is placed at a substantial disadvantage. This applies to all aspects of the student experience, including but not limited to:
 - Admissions, criteria for admission, programme enquiries, and application procedures.
 - Teaching and learning delivery methods, assessment methods, assessment criteria, and curriculum (for example, procedures, policies, course materials, teaching, and assessment methods).
 - Physical features of the learning environment (for example, ensuring accessibility of buildings, fixtures, and fittings).
 - Provision of support services (for example, specialist equipment or human support).

1.3. Admissions & Enrolment

1.3.1. Should you require reasonable adjustments to the higher education admission process, such as completing the application form or adjustments to attend an interview or completing any initial assessments or enrolment form, please contact advideandadmissions@activatelearning.ac.uk

– Teaching and Learning

- If you have a declared disability or additional learning needs, the academic delivery team and study support tutor will be able to discuss your needs, establish a support plan, and make reasonable adjustments where appropriate. Your Programme Specification can be accessed on our website and Activate Learning Online (ALO) (virtual learning environment) for enrolled students, which includes details of course delivery including teaching location, timetable, and teaching and assessment methods. If you feel you require reasonable adjustments, please contact the HE Study Support Team at HEstudysupport@activatelearning.ac.uk who will be able to advise you.

1.4. Assessments (coursework)

1.4.1. Most assessments will require you to submit coursework in the form of written essays, reports, case studies and/or a dissertation / major project. In addition, you may be required to demonstrate your practical and/or professional skills in the form of presentations, seminars or three-dimensional pieces of work. If you require reasonable adjustments, the delivery team will consider whether an alternative assessment is appropriate, such as an oral assessment (Viva), to assess your knowledge and understanding.

1.5. Exams

- 1.5.1. If your programme requires examinations as an assessment component, and you require reasonable adjustments, you can apply for Special Consideration (SC) to our Examinations Office.
- 1.5.2. Reasonable adjustments for examinations will be based upon the evidence provided and follow the Joint Council for Qualifications (JCQ) instructions and requirements for examinations: Access Arrangements, Reasonable Adjustments and Special Consideration - JCQ Joint Council for Qualifications
- 1.5.3. Examples of reasonable adjustments for examinations include:
- Extra time – normally 25%, but could be up to 50% in exceptional cases
 - Reader – Someone will read the text from the examination paper.
 - Computer Reader – A Reader Pen or use of the 'Read Aloud' function on your computer.

3. Scope

- The Policy applies to all higher education¹ enquirers, applicants and students who require reasonable adjustment so that they are not placed at substantial disadvantage during their applicant and/or student journey

4. Definition of Reasonable Adjustments

- Reasonable adjustments are changes made to policies, practices, or physical features, or the provision of auxiliary aids or services, that aim to reduce or remove a substantial disadvantage faced by a disabled student. They enable inclusion and are tailored to individual needs. Examples include:
 - Adapting learning arrangements (e.g. adjusting teaching methods, providing extra time and alternative assessment methods).
 - Making physical spaces more accessible.
 - Providing equipment, services, or support (e.g. assistive software, specialist support, ergonomic tools).
- A short-term illness, health condition, or temporary injury is not regarded as a disability. A student who is temporarily ill or injured isn't entitled to reasonable adjustments, however, staff are encouraged to take a flexible and sympathetic approach to significant and properly verified short terms needs, for example, other adjustments may be available such as an extension or deferral of assessment by following Activate Learning's Higher Education Extenuating Circumstances Procedure.
- Where a student's health deteriorates and there are concerns about their welfare, the welfare of others or their ability to manage the demands of the course, they may be referred to the Fitness to Study or Reside procedures depending on the nature of the concerns and the current requirements of their programme of study.
